Project Description

The U.S. Ambassador to Nicaragua has delivered over 100 speeches, or remarks, since arriving at U.S. Embassy Managua in the fall of 2015. As Nicaragua remains the second-poorest country in the Western Hemisphere with roughly 40% of the population living in poverty, the ambassador attends official and diplomatic events throughout the country to promote economic stability and growth, as well as to highlight items of importance to both U.S. and Nicaraguan people. Some of the subjects she speaks about are: corporate social responsibility, HIV/AIDS prevention, women's empowerment, technology advancement, drug demand reduction, climate change, young entrepreneurs and leaders, strengthening the judiciary, and poetry/jazz festivals. The remarks she gives are saved as part of the official Ambassadorial record and posted, when appropriate, to the U.S. Embassy Managua web-site in both English (ni.usembassy.gov/news-events/) and Spanish (ni.usembassy.gov/es/news-events-es/). The Ambassador typically delivers remarks in only one language (often in Spanish but sometimes in English); leaving a backlog that must be retroactively translated into the other language prior to posting them to the Ambassadorial record and web-site. The Executive Office of U.S. Embassy Nicaragua seeks a candidate fluent in written English and Spanish to assist with translation of upcoming and previously delivered remarks. Most translations will be from Spanish into English.
